

Having graduated from Bridgewater State University with a Library Media Specialist's certificate, I started my career as the West Tisbury School Librarian in 1999.

Prior to that, I had held various positions around the island in almost all of the schools. I taught 9th and 10th grade Social Studies, was an assistant in Edgartown, time shared a job in the old Oak Bluff's school, and eventually landed in West Tisbury.

The school library is truly my sanctuary, and I am delighted to bring reading and literature in a variety of formats to our students.

When I'm not in school, you'll often see me on my horse, Teddy, blazing the trails which criss cross our island.
